LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES

Dept. Code: LAS

Introduction

The Latin American Studies Program at the University of Miami takes an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the politics, economics, cultures, and societies of Latin America and the Caribbean. Courses in the program are offered in departments from every school and college at the University of Miami, and the program's faculty research topics ranging from development economics to immigrant health care, from indigenous music to Caribbean colonial literature, from the archaeology of the region's earliest people to present-day questions of resource conservation and management. Our students become true experts who can speak to a wide range of issues confronting Latin America; experts who can contribute proactively to development and cooperation as well as to business and political analysis in ways that their peers with a more traditional disciplinary focus simply cannot.

Departmental Honors

The Latin American Studies Program invites its undergraduate majors and minors to apply for departmental honors and expand their knowledge of Latin America and the Caribbean. Admission into the departmental honors program is by invitation, but any student who believes her or himself qualified may apply to the academic director of Latin American Studies, preferably during the sophomore or early junior year. Candidates for departmental honors work closely with one faculty member for two semesters to engage in original research in an area of her/his choice. LAS majors and minors with a cumulative G.P.A. of at least 3.0 and an overall G.P.A. of at least 3.5 in the LAS major or minor may earn departmental honors by completing two honors thesis courses, LAS 495 and LAS 496 (Honors I & II). Candidates for departmental honors are responsible for finding a faculty member who is willing to serve as honors thesis advisor and obtain written approval of the Academic Director. The faculty member with whom the student works will help determine the nature of the independent research project. Candidates must complete a thesis (with a grade of at least a B+, which must be approved by the thesis advisor) and present the work at the LAS Annual Student Symposium or another similar event showcasing undergraduate research at the university.

Advanced Writing and Communication Requirement

To satisfy a portion of the College of Arts and Sciences writing requirement, students majoring in Latin American Studies should take at least one Latin American Studies course with a "W" (writing) designation.
