PH.D. IN ENGLISH

http://www.as.miami.edu/english

Curriculum Requirements

1. Courses
   Ph.D. students must complete 54 credit hours (if entering with a B.A.) or 36 credit hours (if entering with an M.A.) of 600-level courses in literature and literary theory.

2. Language Requirements
   A basic reading knowledge of two foreign languages or an advanced reading knowledge of one foreign language is required.

3. Qualifying Examination
   All Ph.D. students are required to pass a qualifying examination. Students may not take the qualifying examination until they have:
   - completed the required Ph.D. coursework,
   - satisfied the foreign language requirement
   - enrolled for ENG 697.

4. Dissertation
   Students may proceed with the dissertation after the dissertation committee has been appointed and the dissertation proposal has been accepted by the committee and approved by the department. The dissertation itself must be an investigation of a substantial critical or scholarly topic. A final oral defense of the dissertation is required.

Further information on the department's graduate programs is contained in the Guide to Graduate Study available from the Department of English and posted on the department Web site in the Graduate section.

Students must complete their work within one year of the schedule set out in the Guide to Graduate Study.

Doctoral Concentration in Early Modern Studies

The Medieval and Early Modern Studies Concentration is an interdisciplinary concentration to be earned in conjunction with the individual Ph.D. requirements for the departments of English, History, and Modern Languages and Literatures (Romance Studies, Spanish, and French). Graduate students will continue to be housed in any one of the three departments and must fulfill the requirements of their discipline. To qualify for the Concentration, students must successfully complete a minimum of two courses (6 credit hours) in medieval and/or early modern studies in one or both of the other two departments, substituting for courses within their department; and a minimum of two courses (6 credit hours) in medieval and/or early modern studies within their home department. Thus, for example, a student whose home department is English would need to take two courses in medieval and/or early modern studies in English and then either two courses in History or MLL or one course in History and one course in MLL. A list of courses for the academic year is posted regularly on the website of the Center for the Humanities (https://humanities.as.miami.edu/academic-programs/early-modern-studies-concentration/).

Mission
The Department of English works to provide its students with a thorough understanding of literatures written in English; to introduce them to a range of critical and theoretical methodologies; to provide them with the skills needed to establish their own scholarly expertise within an area of specialization; to prepare them for careers in scholarship and research within the academy; to train them for teaching in two- and four-year colleges and in research universities; where appropriate, to transfer and develop those research, communication, and presentation skills to non-academic settings; and to assist them in obtaining appropriate employment inside or outside higher education.

Student Learning Outcomes
- Students will demonstrate knowledge of literatures written in English and master methods of literary and cultural analysis.
- Students will develop a capacity for professional development, enabling the graduate to contribute to a profession or field of study.
- Students will demonstrate excellence in teaching undergraduate writing and literature courses.
